

STACY BORANS, MD
Founder and Chief Medical Officer

Dr. Borans is the Founder and Chief Medical Officer of Advanced Medical Strategies (AMS). AMS is the leader in strategic intelligence software for clarity into complex claims. It was founded with the purpose of combining technology, clinical expertise, financial insight, and data science to address the affordability of care. AMS has a targeted focus on specialty pharmaceuticals, catastrophic diagnoses and medical implants.

Dr. Borans is a respected and much in-demand speaker at seminars worldwide for claims professionals. She has appeared on a multitude of educational panels, workshops, and podcasts, in addition to hosting webinars on a regular basis. Through AMS, Dr. Borans has streamlined the way payers all across the healthcare spectrum can better understand and address the most costly and complex claims problems they encounter every day.

Prior to forming AMS, Dr. Borans was Medical Director at Executive Health Resources, where she oversaw insurance denial management, appropriateness of care, and length of stay program in over 50 hospitals spanning 15 states. She began her professional career in medicine as a private practice physician at Fountainville Medical Specialists in Doylestown, PA.

Dr. Borans earned her medical degree from Hahnemann University in Philadelphia, PA. She completed an internal medicine residency at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, also in Philadelphia. She holds a BA in Biology from Brandeis University.

Stacy is the volunteer President of the Board for a no-kill cat shelter and rescue non-profit organization. She also boxes, loves to travel, and is a master mixologist.